STORIES OF THE PIONEERS. NO. I

WILLIAM C. B. RICHARDSON.

The name of Richardson is traceable back to the Norman conquest and is an example of the most common origin of surnames, viz., the addition by the eldest male child of the suffix "son" to the father's name, being in this case the son of Richard. Richardson is said to have been a common name among the Normans, in fact, to have been exclusively Norman, so that there is no room for doubt as to its origin. It is one of those families also, of which a history is traceable back almost to its beginning, if not to the identical individual who first fastened the "son" on to his father's name. It is said that the name is common to almost every county in England and had achieved eminence as early as the sixteenth century. One of the family received the dubious honor of knighthood from Charles 1st and had to pay a fine of forty pounds in consequence. The family has contributed famous names to history. One of the first of these was Samuel Richardson, the novelist, author of Pamela, Clarissa Harlow and Sir Charles Gradison, and a friend of Samuel Johnson. A number of the family were artists and writers. Sir John Richardson, who died in 1865, was a noted Arctic explorer.

Ezekiel Richardson came over to America in 1630, coming to New England with Winthrop, and became the founder of Woburn, Massachusetts. A number of brothers followed shortly, landing in Virginia. Capt. Edward Richardson was one of those who resisted the British at Concord and served all through the revolution. Wm. A. Richardson was secretary of the treasury under Grant, being nominated to that high office in 1873.

Major General L. B. Richardson was a graduate of West Point and had a fine record through the Mexican war, was in command of a division and was killed at the battle of Antietam in the Civil war.

Albert D. Richardson was a noted newspaper man during the Civil war and the author of a popular work on Western life, "Beyond the Mississippi." He was killed in the Tribune office in New York by Daniel McFarland in Dec. 1869.

The subject of this sketch, William C. B. Richardson, was born in Swanzey, N. H., Oct. 28th, 1815. His paternal grandfather was a soldier in the Revolutionary war, taking part in many battles. Mr. Richardson when a boy was taken by his parents to Ohio where he lived many years, receiving an education in the common schools of Summit County. From his father he learned the profession of a surveyor and followed it forty years in Cleveland and vicinity. Being gifted with a talent for business he availed himself of the opportunities afforded for investment in those early years of the history of that section and in Chicago and still has some valuable property in the latter city. He served two terms as a member of the Common Council of Cleveland and was a prominent citizen of that place when he came to California in 1868. A brother had preceded him to this state, coming out in 1849, and was in the habit of sending back East glowing accounts of the El Dorado of the Pacific. It was, therefore, natural that Mr. Richardson should turn to California as the land of promise. Arriving here the brothers met and together made a complete tour of the State, traveling, as every one did at that time, on horseback. Returning to Southern California, Mr. Richardson came out to this valley and realized that his quest was ended; for he asserts now as loyally as when he first saw it, forty years ago, that his is the finest place in the State. He bought the Santa Eulalia ranch, a tract of six hundred and seventy-one acres. A small portion of it has been sold off, but other tracts have been added to Mr. Richardson's holdings so that he is still the possessor of over seven hundred acres of land and around Tropico.

The Western Art Tile Company's factory is located on land donated by Mr. Richardson. He gave to the Los Angeles Interurban Railway Company a right of way all the way through his land and also donated the site for the Southern Pacific depot at Tropico. At the present time about three hundred acres of the ranch is given up to the culture of strawberries, being held under lease by Japanese tenants. Mr. Richardson was married at Akron, Ohio, in 1838 to Miss Sarah Everett, who died at her home in Tropico in 1895, aged 75. They had four children of whom three sons survive. Mr. Richardson did not make California his home until 1880, when with Mrs. Richardson, he moved out to the ranch. His son, E. W., had preceded him, coming here in 1871 and engaging in the sheep business, later having a large dairy on the ranch. Neighbors were few and far between at that time. Captain Hunter, who had come to Los Angeles in 1847, had bought the property through which the city limits now run, in 1862, and was residing here on his domain of 2700 acres. Glassell owned 2400 acres in this vicinity, but was a resident of Los Angeles.

In 1871 there was no railroad in Los Angeles County, except the line from Los Angeles to Wilmington, which road had been built by the city and been given to the Southern Pacific company. In 1873 the Southern Pacific railroad was completed northward to San Fernando; three years were spent in boring the great San Fernando tunnel and in 1876 the line to San Francisco was completed, as was also the road to Anaheim and the line eastward as far as Spadra.

Mr. Richardson at 92, shows some of the feebleness of age, but takes an active interest in affairs and is as ready as ever to aid any cause that appeals to him as deserving of support. He makes a point of doing something every day in the way of physical labor and has a diary of many volumes which dates back fifty years and is posted up to date. He has the honor of being the oldest voter in the precinct of Glendale, which extends from Verdugo Canyon to the river and from Eagle Rock to Burbank. Has always been a Republican, altho taking no prominent part in political affairs. He lives with his son, Mr. E. W. Richardson, at Tropico, but spends much of his time in his own house nearby, which he keeps furnished and ready for occupancy by his "boys" in Chicago, who spend a portion of the winter with him.

Dr. Uhle and Prof. Merriam, have issued a 100-page bulletin giving the results of their excavations of the Everyville mound, near Berkeley. They have been at work for several years, with funds provided by Mrs. Hearst. They found that the strata contained in the mound were ten in number and that it marks the dwelling place of prehistoric tribes through successive generations. They found a great quantity of remains, both animal and human, the collection throwing a great deal of light upon the life of different tribes that passed away centuries ago, altho the age to which the relics belong has not been determined.

EDITORS ARE APPRECIATIVE.

The Editorial Association of Southern California at its outing at San Diego and Coronado, June 28-July 1, inclusive, was the largest and most enthusiastic gathering of the members of the Association ever held since its organization over twenty years ago. This large turnout of newspaper people is construed as an indication of the general prosperity of all classes of people, representing all kinds of business, now enjoyed by the people of this very prosperous section of our country.

On the return trip home over the Santa Fe surf line the members—a hundred and seventy-six strong—appointed a committee to appropriately express their appreciation of courtesies received and through this committee beg leave to issue to the public in general the following statement:

FIRST: We have had a most delightful outing.

SECOND: We are indebted—

1. To J. J. Byrne, assistant general traffic manager; to Harold Hart More, traveling passenger agent, and to other officials and employees of the Santa Fe Railway System for transportation and other courtesies received.

2. To the San Diego Chamber of Commerce for the general reception and entertainment of our Association while in San Diego and vicinity, including the banquet at Hotel del Coronado, two excursions on the Bay, the lunch at Roseville, and the auto and tally-ho rides to the crest of Point Loma.

3. To the San Diego Floral Association for bouquet decorations.

4. To the San Diego Electric Railway, the San Diego and Coronado Railway Company, and the South Park and East Side Railway Company, for transportation courtesies.

5. To Manager Hammond for the use of tents at Tent City during our stay at Coronado Beach.

6. To Madame Katherine Tingley, of Loma Linda Homestead, and her able and efficient corps of teachers and attendants for the entertainment given by the Raja Yoga School at the Homestead.

7. To the Soledad Club for entertainment at La Jolla and to the Folsom Brothers Company for the magnificent lunch and entertainment at Balboa Hotel, Pacific Beach.

8. To the San Diego and Los Angeles Railway Company for the trip to Pacific Beach and La Jolla, and to the National City and Otay Railway for the trip to Tia Juana.

9. To the officers at Fort Rosecrans for their reception, including an exhibition of target practice with the twelve-inch disappearing guns.

10. To the newspapers of San Diego for the reports of our visit to their hospitable city.

THIRD: That we rejoice to note that San Diego County, in common with other sections of Southern California, shows evidence of continued prosperity and rapid development based on a solid foundation, for which development it is fair to assume that the newspapers of this section of the State are in a large measure entitled to a reasonable share of credit.

AND, FINALLY: The sentiment and feeling of the Editorial party appears to be appropriately and forcibly expressed in the rallying song which was so frequently and so heartily sung on the home trip:

"Merrily we roll along,
Roll along, roll along,
Merrily we roll along
O'er the Santa Fe."

Five Years for Schmitz

It is said that if ex-Mayor Schmitz should be convicted on all the charges brought against him, the result would be a cumulative sentence of about four hundred years. This would carry him through several more incarnations, and Judge Dunne is without jurisdiction. The five-year sentence which was pronounced the other day, will do for a starter. It is a good beginning.

"Not as deep as a well, nor as wide as a barn door, but 'twill do."

"Our Satellite"

The attention of our readers is called to the excellent series of articles under the above caption now appearing in the columns of the News by our esteemed correspondent, "X-Ray."

The information contained in these articles, while not new to students of astronomy, is new to a vast majority of our people, who do not devote much time to these subjects, partly because it is difficult to get the facts without wading through volumes which are not always written in an attractive popular style. The virtue of our articles by the correspondent alluded to, consists in the clear, concise manner in which the subject is treated, not with exact cyclopedic dryness, neither with tiresome verbosity. To anyone taking an interest in the subject, they are well worth preserving.

Buy at Home

Now that the main portion of Glendale is temporarily deprived of a railroad as close at hand as formerly, our people should endeavor as much as possible to do their buying in their own town. We are well supplied with stores furnishing all the necessities and comforts of life, and the aggregate of the many small orders which are filled daily in Los Angeles by Glendale people, would go far to make business good at home during the passing dullness of the summer, if given to our home merchants.

We hope that our people will bear this in mind and patronize our merchants at home to the fullest extent possible. The most of them advertise, and a careful examination of these advertisements will no doubt open the eyes of even our regular readers to the fact that Glendale is a considerable business center, where the most of our material needs can be supplied.

The N. E. A.

The National Education Association is assembled in Los Angeles. It is the biggest crowd that has been there since the Shriners assembled, and the majority of the delegates being ladies, comparisons of the two visitations are difficult. We believe, however, that the teachers will see California more generally and judge it more intelligently than the Shriners were able to do in their meteoric flight through the state. The teachers, however, are on their vacation and will stay with us longer. They are not so generally programmed and may wander around at their own sweet will. It is to be hoped that they may find favor in the eyes of the weather department and not be treated to the "unusual" thing in the way of temperature which sometimes gets in hereabouts by mistake.

We look for great benefits to be received by Southern California from this visitation of the teachers. May their stay among us be one of the happy chapters in the history of their individual lives.

The Man who Stops His Paper

Every editor of a country newspaper knows him, for the type is more numerous than it ought to be. He came into the office the other day and paid up his subscription and then ordered the paper stopped because he takes so many papers that he can't find time to read them! He escaped alive, altho we have since been regretting a lost opportunity.

We like to have a man come in occasionally (not too often) and tell us bluntly that he does not like our politics, or our religion, or the cut of our hair, and can't agree with the opinion we expressed in last week's leader. We get some satisfaction out of such an individual, because, usually, we don't care a continental whether he takes our paper or not and it pleases us immensely to know we are not pleasing everybody.

But the individual who lives in a community and thinks he can't afford to pay twelve and a half cents per month toward the support of his home paper, but who can pay seventy-five cents a month for a great big overgrown balloon of a city daily, filled with stuff that he takes no interest in and which robs him of valuable time which he spends in looking for the grain of wheat in its dreary bushel of chaff, lacks something of the elements of good citizenship.

Every man who lives in the community should take an interest in all that helps it. If he thinks poorly of his home paper, let him lend his assistance to make it better. The local paper is working for his interest. It may be poorly edited, or typographically a nightmare, but it can rarely be so bad as not to be a factor in the upbuilding of the community.

The Trustees and the Pacific Electric

We had not thought it necessary to defend the act of the trustees in refusing the application of the Pacific Electric for a franchise up the alley west of Glendale avenue from Fourth to First streets, in connection with the disappearance of the late lamented Fourth street "railroad," for the reason that had their action been either idiotic or damnable, it would have given no reason for the act of outlawry referred to. But it seems that there are still some good citizens who do not understand the matter, and some misinformation is being distributed by industrious fault finders and apologists for the railroad company.

The petition of the Interurban Railway Co. for the alley franchise was filed January 10th. At the next meeting a protest was received from property owners along the alley against granting the petition. A petition was also received favoring it, from other property owners. The Board agreed to grant the privilege asked for by the Interurban company from Fourth street to a point above Third street where the street forms a junction with the alley, leaving a thin triangle between alley and street, and to allow the company to run from that point up H street to First. This would have required a slight angle toward the west, but could have been made (an outsider might suppose) to answer the purpose of the Pacific Electric people.

The trustees would have preferred to grant the request of the Pacific Electric all along the alley, however, except for the fact that they had previously promised the Salt Lake company the privilege of running down the alley from First street to a point near Third. Not being railroad officials, however, but only plain ordinary American citizens with an old-fashioned regard for the sacredness of a promise, the trustees were hampered in their action by this promise previously given to the Salt Lake company.

The petitions and protests are on file in the city clerk's office, where the names of the signers may be seen by anyone wishing to look into the matter further.

THE GLENDALE NEWS

R. G. DUN & COMPANY'S MONTHLY
REVIEW OF TRADE CONDI-TIONS FOR JUNE, IN SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA.

The advent of summer weather during past month has hastened the ripening of fruit crop and the apricot and peach harvest is in full swing. The hay crop is rapidly being baled and grain is beginning to come to local warehouses. Ranchers report good grain yield and claim barley will start off at $1.15 per 100 lbs. Orchardists are being paid highest prices ever known in history of fruit industry for peaches, $30, fully twice the price in normal years. Apricots have brought as high as $110 a ton, as against $60 highest paid last year. The result is that the canning pack of deciduous fruit will be normal; but few peaches or apricots will go to the dryers. Opening prices for 1907 pack have been announced by the Central California cannery. As expected there is a big increase over those of last year. The California Fruit Canners have declined as yet to name prices, desiring to wait until general market and crop conditions can be fairly estimated.

The orange market ruled strong during past month. The feature of market was the high price paid for few remaining navels. The amount of crop seems to be exceeding estimate and shipments heavier than usual at this season of year. Prices for Valencias rule little below expectations but are as high as last year at this time. The new orange crop has set remarkably well, and dropping has been slight. Hot weather put great activity into the lemon market. The call is heavy and prices soaring.

In the cured fruit market interest centers in new crop peaches and prunes. A considerable export demand for the former has developed, and quotations are based on 11c. to 12c to growers. The output will probably be same as last year. The State's prune crop is not 50 per cent. of normal yield. Most of crop has passed from growers to packers at 4c to 4½c bag basis, and quotations have settled to 5c f. o. b. bag basis. The output of apricots for Southern California will not exceed 20 carloads. Growers are being offered around 20c.

Raisins continue to advance, now held at 6c in sweat wheat. The crop will run about 10,000 tons short of estimates, 20 per cent. still remains in grower's hands. Bulk of the raisins last year sold at 3½c to 3¾c. This year practically no raisins were sold under 4½c.

Honey season will be a profitable one. The output will not reach that of a normal year, but much in excess of last year.

The bean market is firm at hardened rates. Price for Limas advanced during month to $5.25. Coming crop looks well. Growers are being offered 4c@ 4½c, but contracts are not being freely made.

Locally business in most lines report satisfactory conditions for this season of year. Value of building permits reached a million and a half for the month. City assessment shows increase of $67,000,000 over 1906. Banks are disbursing semi-annual dividends this month and good increase in business is shown over corresponding period last year. Bank clearances for six months ending June 30th show a net gain of nearly 40 millions over first six months of last year. The market is easing on real estate loans.

Failures for month, 19. Liabilities, $800,000. Assets, $1,000,000. Same month last year, 17. Liabilities, $72,000. Assets, $35,000.

PUBLIC UTILITIES.

We are not very much in favor of the fad of "Municipal Ownership," and the experience of cities generally that have tried it on a large scale, has not been such as to greatly encourage the advocates of the system. But that it is desirable in a limited degree, is almost beyond question. Much good can be accomplished also, we believe, in some cases by state ownership and control. We are led to these reflections by the perusal of a letter from Boston in which the writer (a lady) describes the beach resorts around Boston harbor. Several of these are owned by the state and controlled by a park commission. The grounds are kept in perfect condition and made attractive to the great crowds of the "shut in" residents of the city. Roads and gutters are kept smooth as a parlor floor. There are large bath houses for the accommodation of patrons, where bathing suits are scientifically "sterilized." And it is to be noted that the bathers do not obtrude their physical deformities and alleged "attractiveness" of figure upon the gaze of the unprotected spectator, but wear robes over their bathing suits when out of the water.

These resorts are thoroughly policed by officers who with their families reside on the grounds. The street car fares are very low between these resorts and Boston so that they have an immense patronage.

Whether they pay expenses or are a burden to the state financially we do not know.

STREET WORK.

Contractor Mock has been putting the finishing touches on Fourth street during the week, and that thoroughfare now presents an appearance that would be creditable to any city. He is pushing the work along rapidly on Glendale avenue, one side being almost ready for the oil! A petition, said to represent the required majority of frontage on Lomita avenue, asking for the improvement of that street, is ready for presentation to the trustees. Now that there is a probability of this fine street being improved it is very desirable that Glendale avenue south of Sixth street should also be graded, ciled and curbed. We hope this matter will be looked after at once. The beneficial results of this street work can scarcely be exaggerated and property owners in all parts of the city should be able to see this and realize that the money so expended will be many fold returned.

Local Happenings

E. K. Grant, contractor, will build an 8-room house for Mr. Duarte, at Fourth and C streets.

Mr. Albert Dow is at home again after his serious experience at the hospital and is rapidly improving.

The June number of Out West contains an illustrated article descriptive of Glendale, by Mr. J. C. Sherer of the News.

Mrs. Lawrence and daughter, of Phoenix, Arizona, are spending the summer with the parents of Mrs. Lawrence, Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Buck.

Miss Sarah Thomas, of Highland Park, has been keeping house for her aunt, Miss Sherer, on Fourth street, the past week, Miss Sherer being in Los Angeles.

Mr. C. A. Ruby of A street, who bought the Trimble place, has had a siege of inflammatory rheumatism for the past three months, but is now recovering slowly.

Mr. James F. Greene who has suffered for several weeks from a severely sprained ankle, has now almost recovered, altho he still finds the use of a cane necessary.

Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Banker and their niece who left last week for Colorado Springs, have reported from Salt Lake City where they arrived on time and were enjoying the trip greatly.

Mrs. S. W. Redfield and daughter Dorothy, of Santa Barbara, are guests of Mr. and Mrs. E. S. Comstock. Mrs. Redfield is a professional elocutionist of exceptional ability in that line.

The subject of the sermon Sunday morning at the Baptist church will be "Life"; in the evening, "Ruth and Naomi." Young people's meeting at 6:45 p. m. W. F. Stone, Pastor.

Married—At the Glendale Sanitarium, Friday evening, July 12th, by the Rev. S. L. Ward, D.D., Edward F. Parker, of Toledo, O., and Miss Bebbie J. Stafford, of Detroit, Mich.

Mr. F. H. Montenyohl, familiarly known as "Monty," left Glendale Friday afternoon for San Diego. His many friends will miss him and hope he will find that for which he is looking—health.

Mr. H. C. Goedell, of Lomita Park, who possesses a self registering thermometer, reports that the highest mark registered was 102 degrees on July 4th, one degree below the Los Angeles record.

Miss Millie Peters left last week for New Orleans where she will spend a few days with relatives, and will then proceed by boat to Brooklyn, New York, where she will spend the summer visiting relatives and friends.

Messrs. Cole & Albright and C. T. Schwerer have sold their property on Brand Boulevard to Nat Dryden. This is the north half of the new two story brick hotel building, recently erected, the inside work not having yet been finished.

Mr. F. A. Anderson, now located at Covina, visited Glendale Thursday last. He reports that the new trolley line to Covina is not as yet very well patronized on account of the fare being much in excess of that of the steam road.

We rejoice to note that "Captain" Clover, who buncoed one of our prominent citizens of Lomita Park about two years ago, has got into the clutches of the Federal authorities at Oakland and that his swindling career has at least been checked.

Miss Helen McRostie of Philadelphia is visiting her uncle, Rev. Dr. Ward, on Second street. Miss McRostie is a teacher in the public schools of Philadelphia and takes advantage of the N. E. A. Convention to visit our coast and see her relatives.

E. K. Grant, contractor, will build a strictly modern 10-room house for Mr. John Fairlie, of Omaha, at Orange Grove avenue and E street. Mr. Fairlie is an old printer and bookbinder being the Vice-president of the Reese Printing Co. of Omaha. He will make Glendale his home on the completion of his new house.

The Misses Eva and Ella Malsbury from Cincinnati, sisters of Judge Malsbury of that city, have been visiting Mrs. Alice M. Ayres and Mrs. Gallaway the past week. They came on the N. E. A. Excursion, and have arranged to make Glendale their headquarters during their vacation in California, which will probably consume most of the summer.

Communion and reception of members at the Presbyterian church at 11 a. m. next Sabbath.

At 8 p. m. the pastor will give a Bible reading on the third chapter of I Corinthians, "The Permanence of Christian Works."

On July 21 the morning sermon will be by the Rev. Theodore Hopping and the evening service will be conducted by a representative of the Floating work of the C. E. society of Los Angeles County at San Pedro.

The New Railroad

In conference with Mr. Kuhrt, chief engineer of the Los Angeles Railway Company, the other day, the committee suggested that he come to Glendale and attend a mass meeting of our citizens. This, however, he objected to, and volunteered instead to come out some evening and meet "a dozen or so" of our people. Arrangements were therefore made in accordance with his wishes; the meeting did not take place on the evening first named, as Mr. Kuhrt telephoned that he had to be elsewhere. Last Thursday evening, however, he came out on the seven o'clock car and met with a few of our citizens and the committee. The situation was very thoroughly discussed and there is no doubt but that Mr. Kuhrt understands it fully; and as far as can be judged by his expressions and manner, we believe that he is in sympathy with the people of Glendale and considers their wishes in regard to the matter as fair and reasonable. He understands that in order to secure the bonus asked, it will probably be necessary to build the road through to Glendale avenue, and to guarantee through car service. He has promised to take the matter up with Mr. Huntington, and will report the result next week.

As soon as a decision is reported, a mass meeting will be called for a discussion of the situation.

PICNIC IN SYCAMORE CANYON.

There was a grand picnic in Sycamore Canyon on July 4th. In fact, there were several of them. They say it was not a Presbyterian picnic and claim that there were enough Methodists mixed in for variety and a few Baptists to give it stability. There was a sprinkling of Congregationalists and one or two Catholics around the edges. And they claim that it wasn't so hot up there as in the valley; a statement that must be taken with due consideration for the effect of long cool drinks which were quaffed plentifully. Anyhow, the affair was a success and everyone seemed glad to have been there.

M. E. CHURCH NOTES.

A clear and eloquent sermon was preached by Rev. Geo. R. Graff, A. M., last Sabbath morning to a large and appreciative congregation. Subject, "Patriotism."

At the evening service "A Ship Without a Pilot," was beautifully rendered by Prof. and Mrs. Dobbins, which was finely illustrated. The address, especially to the young, was certainly very convincing and presented a strong appeal to correct living.

The efforts on Tuesday and Wednesday evenings were of a high moral tone and excellently rendered.

Our prayer meetings are well attended and our spiritual life is being increased.

The Epworth League was lead on Sabbath evening by Mrs. Becannon, first vice president, and was of unusual interest.

Through the month of July the League and preaching service will be held as one service, the time being 7:30. Devotional service for the first half hour and then a short sermon.

The present Sabbath evening the sermon will be by Rev. Blackburn.

On Sabbath morning will be the first of nine sermons on "The Lord's Prayer" by the pastor, to be given each Sabbath morning. Each sermon will be a thought or doctrine of the prayer.

The W. F. M. S. held a very interesting meeting in the church on Tuesday afternoon. Mrs. D. F. Hendershot, Mr. and Mrs. Graff, Mrs. C. R. Norton and others attended a district convention at the Newman M. E. church on Wednesday and report a splendid meeting.

As members of the church and pastor we should make the most of these weeks for His cause. The church here will have made a splendid record this year. In many ways the best of the four years of her history.

Sabbath school picnic at one of the reaches next week.

Collection for missionaries by the school last Sabbath was more than five dollars. It was not special, but the regular monthly offering to this cause.

A large number of our Sabbath school scholars are in the I. O. G. T. order here. There is a great pleasure awaiting them on the eve of July 19.

We are exceedingly glad to know that our Brother Puckett is doing well under his long and severe affliction. Loving and tender sympathy is extended to him and his by many loyal hearts.

Mother of the pastor still lingers on this side, but may cross the Mystic river at any time, for which she is fully prepared.

C. R. N.

AN ACKNOWLEDGMENT.

As I will not be able, for an indefinite time, to call on my friends, I take this method of thanking them for their expressions and tokens of goodwill and sympathy for me in my present disability. I did not know that I was of interest to so many, but loving words have flowed in to me in an almost endless stream. I am very grateful to all, not forgetting my dear friend and physician, who has taken so brotherly an interest in me.

Doubt has been expressed as to where I stood on religious matters, and while criticism was likely just, I trust that the statement herein and what is more important, my actions in the future will no longer admit of any doubt. While, perhaps, unusual in this connection, I cannot refrain from making this declaration and giving thanks to God for allowing me to see my home and friends again and to express my faith and trust in Him.

ALBERT DOW.

TEXAS AND THE CONSUMPTIVES.

The state of Texas which recently has made an unenviable record for freak legislation, has capped the climax by resolving to exclude people from the state who are suffering from tuberculosis. Unfortunates who go to Texas in the hope of being permitted to breathe the free air of heaven, in the hope of adding a little to their span of life, are to be taught that the air which hovers over Texas is not free, neither is it the air of heaven; it belongs exclusively to Texas. The germ theory of disease, is probably as well established as many other scientific facts, but when it is carried to the extent of being made a basis for the additional exercise of "Man's inhumanity to man," we are led to doubt whether the world is better for its discovery.

Consumptive patients should receive in all civilized communities the most tender care and consideration. They owe it to their fellows to exercise great care and consideration in return; but, doing this they should not be discriminated against unnecessarily.

The unreasoning fear which some people exhibit of coming in contact with a consumptive leads the observer of humanity to the unhappy conclusion that man is a very poor sort of an animal after all and that the ages that have passed in developing him, have achieved as yet something that falls far short of the finished product.

VOYAGES TO CATALINA.

Commodore George B. Mock took over to Catalina in his steam launch on July 4th, a party from Glendale consisting of City Trustees Watson, Campbell and Jennings, Mr. Postle, Dr. Chase and Postmaster Fanset. The unanimous verdict of the passengers was to the effect that Mr. Mock is a prince among hosts; that his boat is the best of its kind afloat, and that Catalina is an all right pleasure resort, but with possibilities for a high temperature when a hot mainland breeze comes in.

Last Saturday night Mr. Mock took over another party consisting of Messrs. Fraley, Taylor, Volkhardt, Tarning and Wilkenson. The albacore were biting freely and the fishermen had fairly good luck as the neighbors who shared the spoils can attest. The biggest fish got away, of course, but they always do that, so the fact need only be mentioned in passing. The latter party agreed in the verdict of the first as to Mr. Mock in the character of host and commodore of the fleet and as to the fleet itself. They found the temperature on the island had sensibly diminished since the visit of the warm party who sailed over there on the Fourth.

CHILDREN'S PARTY.

At Mr. James Croad's on A street on July 4th, a children's party was given which was attended by about 25 young folks. The table was appropriately decorated in patriotic colors. Ice cream and cake were served and during the evening a fine display of fireworks was given for the enjoyment of the company. The guests dispersed at a late hour, greatly pleased with the day's pleasure.

CITY TRUSTEES.

The city trustees again failed to have a quorum last Wednesday evening. There seems to be no pressing business on the docket which needs immediate attention, a number of serious matters being hung up temporarily during the absence of City Attorney Baker.

Death of Mr. Smalley

Mr. John Smalley, who resided in Sycamore Canyon, died at his residence last Thursday night. Mr. Smalley had not been well for several months and had been very ill for a month past.

THE GLENDALE NEWS

TROPICO

Miss Evalena Ayres has returned from a pleasant sojourn at Long Beach.

Miss Freda Borthick has returned from a week's visit with Miss Lulu Hughes at Norwalk.

Henry Goodwin, a recent arrival in Tropico, who resides on Park avenue, is spending a fortnight at San Diego.

Mr. and Mrs. John Carter and children, of Los Angeles, were entertained by Mrs. Alfred Engelhardt the past week.

Mrs. Joseph H. Webster and daughters, who have been enjoying a delightful visit at Long Beach, have returned to their home "Ivy Nook."

Mrs. B. H. Griffith of Chicago and Mrs. Arthur Wilcox of Highland Park were guests of Mrs. J. D. Botts of San Fernando Road, the past week.

Mr. and Mrs. S. A. Ayres, who have been spending the past two weeks at Sulphur Mountain Springs and Matilija Springs, returned home Thursday.

Mrs. Anna Imler Smith, departed Monday evening on a six weeks' trip to Grand Forks, North Dakota, Des Moines, Iowa, and Chicago, stopping en route in Portland and Seattle.

During the summer vacation Mr. William Malcom has accepted a clerical position in El Monte. Mr. Malcom also accepted the principalship of the grammar school at El Monte, for the ensuing year.

Miss Freda Borthick and Miss Ruby Borthick entertained with a pretty little party Monday afternoon at their home on Park avenue, in honor of the third anniversary of their nephew, Edward Borthick Byram.

J. W. Cook, who resides in the southern part of Tropico, on the San Fernando road and who sustained a fracture of the right limb, below the knee, recently, is slowly improving, owing to his advanced age.

MR. AND MRS. JOHN LEE KIRKHAM FETED.

Mr. and Mrs. John Kirkham entertained with a reception, Friday evening, at their home on Central avenue, complimentary to their son and his bride, Mr. and Mrs. John Lee Kirkham, who have but recently returned from their honeymoon trip.

The handsome new residence of Mr. and Mrs. Kirkham, with its wide verandas and soft velvety lawn was a most ideal place for the large number of guests who assembled to grace the occasion in compliment of Mr. and Mrs. John Lee Kirkham. Crimson-hued Japanese lanterns festooned the lower branches of the trees and twinkled from the shrubbery which dots the lawn. The house throughout was gaily decorated in the scores of the American flag, white oleanders and fragrant magnolias.

In the receiving line with Mr. and Mrs. Kirkham and Mr. and Mrs. John Lee Kirkham, stood Prof. and Mrs. William Malcolm, Mr. and Mrs. Albeit Berthoud, Mrs. Alfred Engelhardt, Mrs. A. W. Hough, Miss Harriet Meyers presided at the punch bowl.

Miss Evalena Ayers sang in her sweetest and most pleasing manner several delightful solos with Miss Adeline Thompson accompanist.

Mrs. Edgar Stuart Ayers with her orchestra composed of Mrs. J. T. Kirkham, Mrs. S. G. Biddle, Miss Adeline Thompson, Rev. D. M. Stuart, Edgar Stuart Ayers, Joy Goodsell, Reuben Kirkham, rendered a number of popular airs.

UNION STATION.

The "Union Station," an amusing comedy, was presented at G. A. R. hall, Wednesday evening, by Mrs. Alfred Engelhardt and Mrs. Harry Webster, under the auspices of N. P. Banks Woman's Relief Corps.

The cast of characters were well and acceptably received as each vied with the other producing the most mirth. The song "Cheyenne" was rendered by six young ladies of Whittier, who appeared in cowboy costumes, wearing broad sombreros on their pretty heads, red bandannas around their necks. Each girl carried a small revolver in her belt and a riding whip, which proved most effective in rendering the song. The young girls who gave this song in such a pleasing manner were Misses Jean Stokes, Evelyn McCoy, Genevieve Graham, Myrtle Langstaff, Beulah Philett and Clara Fenson. Miss Martha Bennett, one of Los Angeles' most prominent contralto soloists, represented Madame Schuman-Heink. Miss Esther Rainbolt of Whittier, a student at Stanford, was most realistic as Sis Hopkins and proved one of the jolliest funmakers, with her chewing gum and comical make-ups. William Stokes and Merle Waldron of Whittier were typical coons from Darktown and rendered several coon songs.

The Professor was represented by Mr. Harry Webster, of Whittier, Joe Ganin was well received by Ovill Redman of Whittier. Mr. Sterling Smith and Mrs. Harry Webster, of Whittier, were well received as Mr. and Mrs. Henpeck.

The other characters were represented by local talent.

Mrs. Charles Murray attended at the lunch counter and dispensed sandwiches, coffee, cake and hamburg in true lunch-counter style. Mr. Murray was a typical policeman as well as widower with four little children, who were Mabel Hough, Marjorie Imler, Donald Murray and Kingsley Dutton. Mrs. A. W. Hough as Mrs. Needy and her children, Myrl Murray and Marjorie Imler, Mrs. S. G. Biddle, Miss Myrtle Harrison and Miss Nellie Scott were typical gypsies. Dwight Stephen was a happy bootblack. Archie Harrison was express and baggage master. Albert Ungerlander called the trains; Alfred Engelhardt, ticket agent; S. G. Biddle, the long-faced person; Paul Miller, the dude; Jamie Rich, Lucretia Scofield and Susie Gibbs, giggling school girls; J. P. Scott, the tramp; Mrs. B. F. Burlingham, Miss Fishwell. Miss Evalena Ayers was the sweetest of brides and Joy Goodsell, the manliest of grooms. Mrs. Alfred Engelhardt as Mrs. Butinsk, divided honors with Sis Hopkins. Mrs. Hattie Vance as Aunt Em, with Eugene Imler as her most inquisitive nephew, made a most happy hit.

Leo Light proved a typical little darky newsdealer; Mrs. John Seaman as Miss Fligby, with her maiden aunts, Mrs. Delia Hapgood and Mrs. W. R. Light, closed the scenes at the railway station, after which the young ladies and gentlemen of Whittier sang "Good Night, Fair Ladies."

The "Union Station" proved not only a financial success but was one of the most successful of many entertainments given by the ladies. The guests from Whittier were tendered a banquet by the corps ladies.

AT THE STATE UNIVERSITY.

Berkeley, Cal., July 9.

Lecturers from the East and from Europe have been greeted by large and enthusiastic classes. The discussions of Dr. McTaggart of Cambridge, England, on the Elements of Philosophy and the Philosophy of Hegel, and of Professor John Adams of London University on educational topics, have been received with marked favor. Dr. Felix Adler of New York, the eminent lecturer and authority on ethical topics, had delivered the third Weinstein lecture dealing in a straightforward and unique way with the morals of trade, discussing the present evils connected with the conduct of our business enterprises and suggesting fundamental remedies therefor. Professor R. S. Holway of this university, an authority on physical geography, delivered a lecture in which he discussed the evolution of scenery along the California coast. Professor John Adams of London entertained an immense audience in a lecture on the Art of Listening, which was received most enthusiastically. Professor Lewis of the department of physics, and Professor Crawford, of the department of astronomy, are announced to discuss topics of interest in their respective fields in public lectures during the coming week. Later on in the session Professor James H. Hyslop, of Columbia University, is to visit Berkeley, and has promised to speak twice, on the following topics: Science and the Future Life; Psychical Research and Politics. Many of the instructors and students will leave this week for Los Angeles to attend the meetings of the National Educational Association. Several of the leading educators gathered here have been given prominent places on the Los Angeles program. The president of the university will deliver an address on Friday afternoon, July the 12th, on the subject, "Call Nothing Common."

RICH-SEAL NUPTIALS.

The marriage of Miss Eliza Rich, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Rich and Mrs. Walter Seal, of Tenesse, was solemnized at the home of the bride's parents, on Cypress avenue, Saturday evening.

"THE WOULD-BE DICTATORS OF GLENDALE."

After Whitman (some distance)

Oh, you dictators!

Oh, you outrageous outragers
Of the uttermost essence of things!

Oh!

Methinks I see great possibilities
Of things impossible,
Continents, Oceans, Tadpoles, Trolley
Cars,

Things visible and invisible!
I see them all!

I see a line of home-buyers
From Baffin's Bay to East Glendale,
With sacks in their hands,
Sacks plentiful and plethoric,
They beckon you, they point you
To the sacks which are agape, aghast, alas!

I see no more!

Yes, I do, too; I have a second sight.
The sacks are collapsed, comminuted, con-flumixt,
And in their place I see
Stovepipe hats, automobiles, champagne,
Jinrikishas, jags!

Oh, you dictators, who would be,
Should be, may be, but ought not to be—
Come, let us reason together—
Let us cogitate, let us confabulate
Let us come off!

Explain the mystery of the shrunken
sacks,
What have you done with the plethora of the sacks,
The bulginess of the sacks
The saccharine contents of the sacks!
Eh! What!

Oh, dictators, who dictate, abdicate!
I see a thousand things unseeable,
I know all the things unknowable,
I think the things unthinkable,
I see pollywogs, Ichthyrosafl, mastodons, mollusks—
I see snakes!

THURSDAY AFTERNOON CLUB
ENTERTAINS.

The officers and members of the Thursday Afternoon Club tendered an "At Home" at Logan's hall, Monday evening to their husbands and sweethearts, which proved a most delightful affair.

OUR SATELLITE.

III.

(By a Special Contributor.)

If the moon ever supported vegetable or animal life, it is quite certain that all traces of it departed untold ages ago. But there are many reasons to believe that no kind of life has ever appeared on our Satellite. If there is any atmosphere it must be rarer than that in any vacuum we are capable of producing on the earth. It is equally certain that there can be no water there either, for if water were present in any part of the lunar globe, it would be vaporized by the great heat of the long lunar day, and become manifest in clouds or mists which would obscure portions of the body of the moon. No such appearances have ever been observed under the closest scrutiny of thousands of observers during hundreds of years. The moon is better known than any other celestial body, being so close to us that it has been possible to make detailed maps of its surface, which is seen to consist entirely of ancient extinct volcanoes, of gigantic size, and from the earliest recorded observation, not the slightest change has ever been noted in lunar landscape. Of course, we have never seen the side of the moon turned away from the earth, but in all probability it is entirely similar in character to that with which we are familiar. As the moon turns on its axis only once in its journey round the earth, a day and night on the moon are over 300 hours each. During all that long day the sun pours down its heat, untempered by cloud or atmosphere, on the lunar surface, which thereby becomes heated to a temperature estimated at 500 degrees Fahrenheit, or nearly the fusing point of tin or bismuth. This great heat is, however, entirely radiated away during the equally long lunar night, and the intense cold which succeeds is estimated to reach absolute zero—250 degrees below freezing point, giving between these two extremes a severe variation in temperature of 750 degrees. Even supposing it possible that some low form of vegetation might exist on the moon, with the small quantity of air and moisture, such as might elude our most delicate fees, it is inconceivable that our plant life could survive exposure, first to a degree of cold far greater than that of our Arctic regions, and then in a short time to a degree of heat capable of melting tin.

The telescope brings to view the lunar mountains and valleys with their deep shadows, with striking distinctness, but we cannot, of course, make out any details which can be called scenery. Nevertheless, as a popular astronomical writer says, "Where the material eye is baffled the clairvoyance of reason and analogy comes to its aid," and a lunar day and night is described as weird in the extreme. Many novelists have essayed the fancy of depicting a lunar landscape, but they have mostly left out one very important consideration: the absence of air and water. One such novelist, H. G. Wells, in his book, "The First Men on the Moon," tells of a gigantic fungoid vegetation, bursting into life during the first few hours of the long lunar day, growing so fast as to attain maturity and decay in the short interval of fourteen days, its great seed-pods bursting with a noise like the report of a gun. This is utter nonsense, particularly with regard to the noise. A thousand cannons might be fired in that airless world, but no noise would ensue, as in the absence of atmosphere there can be no sound on the moon, where the silence of death forever reigns. The picture which we may surmise by "analogy and reason" is very different from the fanciful conception of the novelist, and not nearly so inviting from a human point of view. At the end of the long lunar night, in the absence of twilight, no delicate dawn heralds the approach of the orb of day, whose bright untempered beams dart suddenly from the black horizon upon the mountain tops, crowning them with dazzling brilliancy while their flanks and valleys are yet in utter darkness. On the earth, sunrise occupies 2½ minutes, but on the moon, by reason of the comparative slowness of the latter's axial motion, it takes nearly one hour. There can be no diffused light in the moon and only those portions which are in the direct rays of the sun can be seen. Therefore, in the full blaze of lunar noonday, the sky must be as dark and the stars shine out more brilliantly than we see them on the clearest moonless nights. The most conspicuous object in the lunar sky, however, must be the earth, and to a lunar spectator it would appear as a moon—glorious and imposing, indeed. Its diameter would be four times as great as the full moon seen by us, and the area of its disc, thirteen times as great, passing through its phases just as we see similar phases in our satellite, and attaining its greatest beauty with full illumination at lunar midnight. Such are a few imaginative pictures to which we are guided by scientific inference. They are pictures of dreary and desolate grandeur, far from pleasing, but instructive and suggestive of other scenes and phenomena from points of view very different from those ordinarily contemplated.

From the earliest ages untutored gazers have seen "the man in the moon," and it is said the earliest map of the moon was a rough reproduction of a man's face, the eyes, nose and mouth representing the more prominent spots on the lunar disc. A French superstition discerns Judas Iscariot in the moon transported thither for his betrayal of the savior and these fancies lead us, in conclusion, to a few remarks on the supposed influence of the moon on terrestrial phenomena. It used to be a common belief that a person sleeping in the moonlight would become blind, another prevalent belief was that the moon executed some sinister influence on human sanity, and this survives to the present day in the term "lunatic" as applied to an insane person, or an asylum for such unfortunate. There is still a very widespread notion among country people that the moon has some kind of influence on growing crops and animals, and in astrological almanacs are to be found wonderful instructions to avoid ploughing, sowing, reaping or pruning or even sheep-shearing under certain conditions of the moon. There is only one person who profits, by these absurd ideas, and that is the almanac maker, who does but exploit the credulity of his fellow man for his own base purpose. Inasmuch as it is almost impossible to prove a negative, these popular superstitions will die a hard death, but it need hardly be said that there is not the slightest foundation for them in fact or theory. All these beliefs, probably resolve themselves in the idea that the moon exerts a direct influence on the earth's atmosphere, and therefore on the weather, which at first sight appears plausible enough, considering the powerful effect the moon's attraction has on terrestrial waters. It might be thought that as Oceanic tides are mainly produced by the moon, similar atmospheric tides might be produced by the same cause. This belief is so prevalent at the present day among all classes, that an emphatic statement of the evidence of science on the question is highly desirable. If we put the question first to scientific theory, and ask whether there is any law of nature or property of matter by which the moon can cause the observed changes in the weather, science replies that no such influential cause or property exists; and that altho' the moon may cause atmospheric tides, these would be entirely inadequate to account for the atmospheric changes ascribed to the moon. The rays of the full moon concentrated in a two-foot lens have been found unable to affect the most delicate thermometer. A similar concentration of solar rays would melt platinum. We cannot, therefore, suppose out atmosphere to be appreciably affected by the light of the moon.

Turning now to observed facts and taking the records of changes of weather made in our meteorological observatories under the most exact and scientific methods, and comparing them for any number of years with the changes of the moon, we shall find that there is absolutely no correspondence between them at all.

But it would seem obvious to common sense that the moon can have no connection with the weather from the simple fact that very various weather exists in different places on the earth at the same time, and if the moon were accountable for it all, we should have the extraordinary phenomenon of the same cause producing rain in New York, sunshine in Southern California, snow in Russia, wind in Chicago and any other kind of weather observed in other places all over the world at the same time. A conclusion which we see reduces the whole proposition to absurdity.

Mrs. Libbie Thompson and aunt of Arizona have opened up a first-class restaurant in the old poolroom at Tropicana, which has been remodeled.

Mrs. A. Young has as her house guests Misses Lou Momeyer and Luella Reynolds, of McKeesport, Penn., who will spend the summer in Burbank.

The school trustees at their meeting on Saturday evening elected John Radcliffe clerk of the board. Prof. W. J. Hornby was elected principal and all other teachers will remain the same as last year, who are Misses Jane Lutte, Mattie Mortensen, Nellie Cartwright and Emma Perry.

The Gun Club held a blue rock shoot at their grounds on the Fourth of July. Harry Ludlow was high man, a tie was between Victor Lemar and Will Ludlow, sr., and Charlie Fairburn was fourth. Of the girls, Elsie Ludlow received high honors, breaking 6 out of 10. There was a large attendance.

John Radcliffe and Henry Herberger met with an accident Monday while driving to Glendale. The tug became unfastened and the horse started to run. After running for two miles he overturned the buggy, throwing both men out. Mr. Radcliffe escaped without any injuries, while Mr. Herberger's arm and leg were badly sprained.

A merry crowd of boys spent Saturday and Sunday at Venice. No points of interest escaped them, but nevertheless they were glad when they landed in Burbank. Those enjoying the outing were Henry and Harry Purrier, Robert Cluegge, Harry Hixon, Earl Robinson, Ray Ludlow, Ira Robinson, Will Holst and Chester Craig.

The Standard Oil Co. have commenced a large two-story brick building on Front street, between Olive and Verdugo avenues. A large pumping plant and storage tanks will be installed. This will benefit Burbank, as the store men and pumping plant men will receive their oil and distillate here. The company intend to have the building complete about the first of November.

Earle Malone, the little son of Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Malone met with a serious accident Monday evening. Mr. Malone is having his house remodeled and the children were playing around. Rupert climbed upon a ladder and accidentally fell about 8 feet on Earle, who was on the ground. Dr. Thompson was called at once and found that Rupert escaped without injuries, while Earle's leg was dislocated and arm badly sprained.

Rev. Grant K. Lewis, who conducted the successful revival meetings in the Christian church during the winter, will preach in that church Sunday evening, July 14th, at eight o'clock. The many friends Bro. Lewis made in Burbank will be glad of an opportunity to hear him once more.

Mr. Leon Shaw, former state president of the Christian Endeavor Society, will conduct the Endeavor meeting at seven o'clock, and will sing.

It is also hoped that Miss Jeffrey Garriot, who so acceptably led the singing for the revival meetings, will be present and sing. Everyone is cordially invited to attend.

At the meeting of the Burbank Union Christian Endeavor Society Sunday evening, July 7th, in the Christian church, the delegates to the State Convention just held in Long Beach reported. The society sent eight delegates, Rev. and Mrs. E. D. Chapin, Mr. Albert Thedaker, Misses Etta Terry, Grace Shelton, Christa Brown, Alpha Thedaker, Idona Ayers, and Hazel Everts. It was a most profitable and inspiring convention, with more than 2500 in attendance, and the reports brought back by the delegates were very interesting.

All who have no other place of attendance are cordially invited to attend the annual Endeavor meetings in the Christian church every Sunday evening at seven o'clock.
